FACTS COMMON TO ALL COUNTS

History of The Outer Space Man and Plaintiff's Activities

14. Since at least as early as 1971 Plaintiff has been buying, selling and collecting sports and entertainment memorabilia, historical documents, autographs, photographs, souvenirs and other novelties, including being the owner of sixteen (16) original negative photographs of the world famous rock and roll singing group, The Beatles, taken by the famed photograph Albert Marrion since January 25, 2001. Plaintiff is also the joint owner to The Outer Space Men, LLC which includes famous space action figure characters from as early as 1968.

15. The Outer Space Men are a group of sculpted, bendable action figures originally produced by the Colorforms Company in 1968, under a license from Mel Birnkrant, a toy inventor who independently authored and created each of the toy action figures in 1967. Each fictional character represents an extraterrestrial being from the planets in our Solar System, as well as various places in our galaxy.

16. Figures in the original series include:

- a. Alpha 7, the Man from Mars: A diminutive alien molded in lime green with green skin, a bald, green head with antennae and a metallic blue space suit with a green-tinted (removable) helmet.
- b. Astro-Nautilus, the Man from Neptune: alien molded in purple with a Chamber of Nautilus head and an octopus armed body, four poseable tentacles and a metallic gold space suit.

- c. Commander Comet, the Man from Venus: The most human-looking alien, molded in pink with large, (removable) angelic wings, a pink-tinted, (removable) helmet, and a metallic gold space suit.
- d. Colossus Rex, the Man from Jupiter: The largest and fiercest-looking alien, molded in lime green and resembling The Creature from the Black Lagoon, wearing only dark purple shorts over a huge, muscular body.
- e. Electron+, the Man from Pluto: A bald, robotic-looking alien molded in gray, entirely painted silver with a clear, (removable) space helmet.
- f. Orbitron, the Man from Uranus: The tallest alien, molded in pink with the least amount of paint, is an alien with a large exposed brain, a beak-like mouth, long, gangly limbs and pincers in place of hands.
- g. Xodiac, the Man from Saturn: molded in deep red, with a red bald head, pointed ears and chin, a blue metallic space suit with a (removable) pink-tinted helmet and "Saturn" emblem on chest. A copy of the XODIAC Figure is annexed hereto as Exhibit "B".

17. Each of The Outer Space Men characters was armed with some type of weapon, and several also included a helmet or other accessory (the accessories/weapons are constructed of hard-cast polystyrene of various colors).

18. On December 4, 1968, Colorforms registered a copyright for the XODIAC Figure, Copyright Reg. No. GP0000063478 ("XODIAC Copyright"). A copy of the record located on the Copyright Office's website is annexed hereto as Exhibit "C".

19. In 2005, creator Mel Birnkrant partnered with Gary Schaeffer to form a company called The Outer Space Men, LLC, which has revived THE OUTER SPACE MEN brand with the release of a graphic novel, and a number of related products, including a new series of toy action figures.

20. Since at least as early as 2005, Plaintiffs have sold in the United States toy action figures and related items under the series name The Outer Space Men, and including the individual name and trademark XODIAC.

21. On March 6, 2009 the XODIAC Copyright was assigned from the defunct Colorforms to Mel Birnkrant and Plaintiff, Gary Schaeffer, as joint owners, recorded in Volume 3575 Doc. No. 508 with the United States Copyright Office. The renewal for the XODIAC Copyright was recorded on March 6, 2009 RE 930-653, which displayed Plaintiff, Gary Schaeffer as a joint owner of the XODIAC Copyright. A copy of the assignment and renewal recordation is annexed hereto as Exhibit "D".

22. Plaintiff has successfully and exclusively profited from the sale of the XODIAC Figure since at least as early as 2005. The Outer Space Men toy action figures, including the XODIAC Figure have been marketed, advertised, and displayed by Plaintiff on the internet via theouterspacemen.com website, on eBay and have been featured in trade shows. Since at least as early as 2005, Plaintiff has spent considerable sums in promoting The Outer Space Men toy action figures, including the XODIAC Figure.

Defendants' Activities

23. On or around January of 2017, Plaintiff reviewed a recent issue of Food Network Magazine's "A Year of Cupcakes" issue. Inside the issue, there was an advertisement for "Milk Life" containing an unauthorized image of a Japanese knockoff of the XODIAC Figure (as shown in Exhibit A). The Japanese knockoff is substantially similar to the XODIAC Figure as it has the same shape, clothing design (i.e., the ribbed shoulder, elbow, thigh, and knee pads), center circular logo in the middle of the figure's chest, same helmet shape, and the same facial characteristics (i.e., the head shape, ears, beard design, and eyes) ("Japanese Knockoff"). A side-by-side comparison of the XODIAC Figure and Japanese Knockoff is annexed hereto as Exhibit "E".

24. Upon information and belief, the "Milk Life" advertisement was originally created by Defendant Anderson and was commissioned by Defendant Campbell for one of Defendant Campbell's clients. Defendant Hearst sold advertising space to Defendant Campbell for the "Milk Life" advertisement to display in issues of one of Defendant Hearst's publications, Food Network Magazine.

25. On January 31, 2017, Plaintiff's counsel sent a cease and desist letter to Vicki Wellington, VP/Publisher/CRO of Hearst Communications Inc. demanding that it: (i) immediately cease and desist all sales of the Food Network Magazine "A Year of Cupcakes" issue and any future advertisements including the unauthorized image of the XODIAC Figure; (ii) immediately notify Plaintiff that Defendant Hearst will in no way make further unauthorized use of the XODIAC Copyright; (iii) pay for a release license authorizing the prior use the XODIAC Figure in the amount of $50,000; and (iv) provide an accounting of any sales or distribution of the Food Network Magazine "A Year of Cupcakes" Issue. A copy of the Plaintiff's letter addressed to Defendant Hearst dated January 31, 2017 is annexed hereto as Exhibit "F".

26. On February 10, 2017, Jennifer D. Bishop, Esq. from Defendant Hearst responded to Plaintiff's cease and desist letter. Ms. Bishop indicated that the "Milk Life" advertisement in question was not created by Defendant Hearst but was placed by Defendant Campbell and would forward Plaintiff's January 31, 2017 cease and desist letter to Defendant Campbell. A copy of Defendant Hearst's February 10, 2017 cease and desist response letter is annexed hereto as Exhibit "G".

27. On or around February 21, 2017, Stephen Zeff, Esq. contacted Plaintiff's counsel by telephone indicating that he represented Defendant Campbell and received Plaintiff's January 31, 2017 cease and desist letter. Mr. Zeff further indicated that Defendant Campbell is the advertising agency that created and placed the print "Milk Life" advertisement appearing in Food Network Magazine.

28. On or around February 2017, Plaintiff noticed that the infringing "Milk Life" advertisement was printed again in a recent edition of the Food Network Magazine the Italian Issue. A copy of the Food Network Magazine, the Italian Issue is annexed hereto as Exhibit "H".

29. On or around February 22, 2017, Mr. Zeff and Plaintiff's counsel communicated via telephone again and Mr. Zeff indicated that he would forward Plaintiff's January 31, 2017 cease and desist letter to Defendant Anderson's counsel.

30. On February 22, 2017, Plaintiff's counsel emailed Mr. Zeff notifying him that Food Network Magazine ran the identical infringing "Milk Life" Advertisement in its Italian Issue. A copy of the email correspondence between Mr. Zeff and Plaintiff's counsel is annexed hereto as Exhibit "I".

31. On March 2, 2017, John Pickerill, Esq. representing Defendant Anderson, sent a letter to Plaintiff's counsel erroneously disputing Plaintiff's claims to the XODIAC Copyright and included baseless threats of legal action against Plaintiff's counsel for bad faith and unethical conduct. A copy of Mr. Pickerill's response letter is annexed hereto as Exhibit "J".

32. On March 22, 2017, Plaintiff's counsel responded to Mr. Pickerill's March 2, 2017 letter and provided detailed information as to Plaintiff's rights to the XODIAC Copyright and demanded that Defendant Anderson: (i) immediately cease and desist any use of the unauthorized image of the Japanese Knockoff of the XODIAC Figure, including notifying any magazine publications to stop running the infringing "Milk Life" advertisement; (ii) immediately inform Plaintiff that he will in no way make further unauthorized use of the XODIAC Figure or Copyright or continue use of the Japanese Knockoff; and (iii) pay for a release license authorizing the prior use of Plaintiff's XODIAC Figure and Copyright in the amount of $100,000 for the willfulness of Defendants to continue print of the infringing "Milk Life" advertisement. A copy of Plaintiff's March 22, 2017 response letter is annexed hereto as Exhibit "K".

33. Defendants have damaged the business and goodwill of Plaintiff nationally, and in this judicial district, and unless enjoined, Plaintiff is informed and believe that Defendants will continue such conduct to the immediate and impending, irreparable injury of Plaintiff.
